ARMY DISCHARGE CREDITS

Here is how the army will determine what men are to be discharged after the war in Europe is over. Special forms have been quietly sent to commanding officers in all theatres. They are to be distributed to the G.I.s who will fill them out, try to figure out the number of credits they have earned to give them a quick return home.

The one thing still undecided by the army is the number of credits necessary for immediate release. This columnist is able to reveal, however, that:

1. All credits will be determined as of the date the war in Europe is over.

2. Special credits will be given for overseas service, and overseas service will mean any service outside the continental limits of the U. S., including Alaska. Thousands of men who served in Alaska will receive overseas credit. Overseas service will be determined from the day a man leaves a port of embarkation.

3. Combat credit will be given only for those receiving the medal of honor, distinguished service cross, legion of merit, silver star, distinguished flying cross, soldiers' medal, bronze star, air medal, purple heart or bronze service stars for battle participation. No other awards or ribbons will be included.

4. Credit will be given for children who are under 18 years of age on the day the war in Europe ends, but for some mysterious reason the army will not allow credits for more than three children.

HENRY KAISER CONCILIATES

Few people realize it, and shipbuilder Henry Kaiser is too modest to admit it, but he was the guiding genius behind the recently signed pledge for postwar industrial peace just promulgated by Eric Johnston, president of the U. S. chamber of commerce, CIO Pres. Phil Murray and AFL Pres. Bill Green.

Kaiser figured out the scheme last fall after seeing the terrific bitterness of the election campaign. He first approached Bill Green, told him that if Green was sincere about believing in a 60,000,000-job program, management needed assurances of labor peace. Green was agreeable.

Johnston agreed to call the first meeting, invited Kaiser, Murray and Green to a hush-hush dinner in his Mayflower hotel suite, debated the entire proposal up, down and sideways.

Not content with a bare statement of unity and pledge of labor-management peace, Kaiser has now quietly proposed that the U. S. chamber of commerce, the AFL and the CIO set up a new, well - financed organization which can actively go about the business of contacting local labor leaders and local business men, preaching the gospel of cooperation on that level.

PETRILLO CRACKDOWN

Congress is so steamed up about the rambunctious practices of horn-tooter James Caesar Petrillo, head of the American Federation of Musicians, and bushy-browed John L. Lewis, mine workers' chief, that responsible labor leaders are greatly worried that it may pass the Bailey bill.

This would invalidate the agreement Petrillo won after defying the record manufacturers and the government for two years, and which provides that the manufacturers pay his union a royalty on every record made. It would also rule out the 10-cent-per-ton coal royalty Lewis asked after he saw Petrillo get his.

Even though many of them have little sympathy for the Petrillo-Lewis methods, labor leaders see in the Bailey bill far more danger than appears on the surface. For if the bill becomes law, it will knock out not only Petrillo royalty setups, but also numerous negotiated agreements whereby employers agree to pay a small portion of their payroll into health funds jointly administered by the union and the employer.

These are used to pay sickness and accident benefits, medical costs and death benefits for employes, and more and more employers are agreeing to include contributions to these funds in their contracts with the unions. There have been no complaints about these funds, but they will be illegal if the Bailey bill becomes law.

Scouters Seek To Raise $50,000 Foundation Fund

Editor Campbell Press:

The executive board of the Santa Clara County Council, Boy Scouts of America, have established a foundation, the Boy Scouts Memorial Foundation," and have set a goal of $50,000 as the least sum to be raised. We hope to raise much more.

A board of trustees has been set up to administer the fund, headed by Judge Wm. F. James, Charles E. Moore, John D. Crummey, and other equally fine men. Charley Moore, president of Joshua Hendy Iron works, heads the committee to raise this money. The fund will be used to equip Boy Scout camps, build swimming pools, etc. There are two Camps, one near Felton and the other the historic John Brown ranch on the Saratoga summit.

Our community has been asked to raise some of this money. Mr. James W. Dent is chairman of the district committee. The writer is district finance chairman. Together, with the assistance of all good Scouters, we hope to make a good showing for our district. There will be no high pressure salesman ship—we would like to have every citizen interested in this great project, as it will be of lasting benefit to the children of our community. A good Scout is a good citizen. Thanks for your interest.

Former Local Boy Aids Development Of Jeep Steerer

At an Aleutian base a newly designed bushing for jeep steering arms has been developed by S/Sgt Buford Uhler of Medina, Ohio, and T/5 Marshall L. Winkler.

Winkler, who was foreman at the Campbell Machine Works on North Union avenue, is the nephew of Lew Winkler of Campbell and was a resident of Payne avenue for over ten years. His wife lives in Roseburg, Ore.

Under climatic conditions peculiar to some Aleutian bases the standerd jeep bearing was found unsuitable and presented an important maintenance problem. But the two men in close cooperation designed and made a number of their improved pattern, which under repeated tests proved durable and successful. The two men have been commended for their initiative and resourcefulness.

Novel Program For Public Schools Week

Public Schools week will be observed at Campbell Union High school in a unique way this year, by a reversal of the usual order of parents and students.

On Thursday evening, April 26, beginnig at 7:15, parents will be the students. The plan is to have each parent go through the regular daily program of the students, with the periods shortened to ten minutes.

There will be a brief assembly between the fourth and fifth periods. Refreshments at a minor charge will be served in the campus canteen.

School will be out at 9:15. Students will be required to write out their programs and give them to their parents and these will be their admission to the different classes.

In this way the parents will know more clearly their children's daily routine and also give them the opportunity to meet the faculty in action.

An experiment like this can only work successfully if the students urge their parents to turn out for this special Parents' Night program, and the parents cooperate heartily in the plan.

NOTICE

Anyone wishing to participate in an amateur program held under the auspices of Morning Light Lodge No. 42, I.O. O.F. in their hall on May 3, kindly register with Ray Spafford at Ray & Jay Studios, Curry building.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lorenzini have purchased property on Eldon Drive and will begin operations of building a new home within a short time. Mr. Lorenzini is a state inspector in the health department. They are locating here for the benefit of their son's health.

PRESIDENT TRUMAN

After more than 12 years of saying, "President Roosevelt" it will not be an easy task to change it to "President Truman."

Harry S. Truman, born on a Missouri farm 60 years ago, has been thrust into world history from comparative obscurity of the Vice Presidency. Unlike his predecessor, his family was poor. His career has not been outstanding. Before his election to the senate he devoted his time to farming, to an unsuccessful business venture, and to a job as county judge.

As head of the senate investigating committee of war activities, he made a good name for himself. The committee's reports were enlightening. They were straightforward in placing the blame where deserved or giving credit where it was due. These investigations gave Harry Truman an inside knowledge of the war effort which he could not have otherwise obtained. It should help him greatly in his new duties.

Mr. Truman is an unassuming man. He recognizes his own limitations. He has made it clear that he plans no radical changes in policy or in the administration. His principal aim will be to keep the nation on even keel during the months ahead, in seeing the war to a successful conclusion and in laying the foundation for a lasting peace.

Few men in all history have been faced with a greater responsibility than now confronts him. He cannot handle it alone. He will need our cooperation, our support and our prayers. These we must give him.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS WEEK

Public Schools week—April 23-27—will afford a special opportunity for all citizens to gain a better understanding and appreciation of the work which the American public schools are doing.

America's future is being formed in the classrooms where our youngsters are being trained in the practical ideals of freedom, of self-government, and of respect for the rights of others.

How well they are trained will determine to a large extent how well the nation will meet the problems of the future. Active and alert interest on the part of the public in general, as well as that of parents, will contribute much to obtaining and maintaining the highest type of training for the citizens of tomorrow.

At present our youngsters need us. In a few years we will need them. Let us give them and the teachers who labor so patiently to increase their store of knowledge our sincere interest.

America is America because of its ideals in education. Let us preserve them.

SEVENTH WAR LOAN DRIVE

Although the Seventh War Loan Drive does not begin officially until May 14, it is already underway for individual bond buyers since their purchases made since April 9 will count in the final total.

California's quota is $861 million. Of particular interest is the fact that more than half of that amount —$538 million—is to be sold to individuals. And that puts Mr. and Mrs. John Q. Citizen squarely in the spotlight. They have the major role in this campaign. It is their individual bond purchases that are being especially sought.

In fact, the Treasury Department has ruled that no community can receive credit for exceeding its overall goal unless the individual quota has been attained.

The national goal is $14 billion and $7 billion of this is to come from individual pocketbooks. This means that more real "drive" will have to be put into this Drive than ever before if we are to make it the success that it must be. Banks of the Nation, which have played a principal part in the sale of War Bonds both during and between drives, are organizing their sales forces even more intensively for this one.

To add further incentive to their efforts, they will compete among themselves to see which of them can sell the most Bonds to the public.

The emphasis on individual bond purchases is aimed at absorbing as much as possible of the excess purchasing power now creating a dangerous inflationary threat. Every Bond, then, is doubly important. It will help both on the fighting line and on the home front.

Don't just buy your "share" of War Bonds—buy all you possibly can!

GERMAN NATION MUST BE REBORN

The beastiality of the German mass slayings now authenticated by American correspondents, the fiendishness of the German taskmasters and the brutal disregard for civilized restraints toward hundreds of thousands of captives in the German prison camps prove one thing beyond all else:

The fight for decency and humanity in that sector of the world will have just begun, when the war ceases.

It is unreasonable to suppose that every German, even after years of Nazism, would endorse the barbaric cruelties ordered and arranged by Hitler as routine procedure in the concentration camps. But Germans generally could not have been wholly without knowledge or suspicion of the "murder factory" openly operating at Limburg, where an estimated 20,000 political prisoners, Jews and slave laborers, men, women and children, were gassed, starved, shot and burned.

The people must have had some inkling of the legalized murder of Poles, Czechs, Russians, Belgians Dutch and French that proceeded regularly at Ohrdruf from the time an enabling law was adopted in 1939 until Allied troops marched in.

They could not possibly have been entirely ignorant of the wholesale killings at Riga, at Salaspits Camp, Bickernick Forest, Audriny—and Lubin. It is not conceivable that the wretched business of wholesale slaughter at these and other places was either a fiction or a secret to the German home front. And yet, no German yet has risen to say that he opposed the barbarism, refused to carry out the inhuman orders or raised his hand in a prisoner's behalf.

Like a vicious, brutalizing poison injected into their veins and sapping their mortality, the doctrine of German license to dominate and destroy has been the lesson taught for more than a generation in the Fatherland. Unquestionably, it has been learned by many. There is no indication that any who refused to learn it opposed it.

The proof is overwhelming that no great segment of the German people escaped the evil Nazi dosage in the years of Hitler's regime.

Drawing off the Nazi poison, clearing the polluted veins of the German people—who possibly do not want them cleared—will be the work of who knows how many future years?

If any vestige of the sick and obscene Germna fatherland is to be salvaged, surely it will have to submit to an inner cleansing that will reach, if it can, the German heart, and a moral reeducation that must reach its soul.

"Boy, I'm scared! I just gotta letter from a man telling me he'd shoot me if I didn't stay away from his daughter." Well, all you have to do is stay away from his daughter." Yeah, but he didn't sign his name."

Hedda Hopper: Looking at HOLLYWOOD

TODAY'S Solid Sams and their slick chicks can whistle Chopin's "Valse in A Flat" with almost as little trouble as they can "Beat Me, Daddy, Eight to the Bar."

You can credit that victory for "good music" to the movies. Radio claims some of the credit for familiarizing Joe and Mary Public with classical selections, but it really has been the sound film that has glamorized symphonies and grand operas.

Time was, and not so long ago, kiddies, when any music that wasn't hot-cha was considered "long-hair." One sure way to lose not only your shirt but also your entire wardrobe was to sponsor concerts or opera. Both had to be subsidized until the movies came along and demonstrated that by a new showmanship Chopin, Tschaikowsky, and the other old boys could have almost as great a mass appeal as Jerome Kern, Irving Berlin and Cole Porter.

Geraldine Farrar

Personally, I'd like to own a piece of "A Song to Remember," the film based on the life and music of Frederic Chopin—and Columbia can take me up on that hint any time they want to. This film, which bases its appeal on classical music, is not only a treat for the ears and eyes, but it's packing folks into the theaters wherever it's shown.

When Cornel Wilde is at the keyboard playing any of the dozen sequences, audiences are as thrilled as though they were listening to selections from this week's "Hit Parade." In handing out hosannas, one has to to be directed toward Charles Vidor, director. That Vidor boy has gone places — "Cover Girl," "Together Again," and "A Song to Remember," all in one year!

I take off my latest chapeau in salute to Harry Cohn for presenting Chopin music. Harry has championed good music on the screen before and turned it into a box office hit.

Daddy of Them All

Cecil B. De Mille really is responsible for introducing good music to the screen. It was 'way back in the silent days—1915, to be exact—that C. B. lured Geraldine Farrar away from the Metropolitan Opera company to appear in "Carmen."

The Bizet music accompanied "Carmen" when it was shown, and the combination was a hit.

When Vitaphone introduced sound to the screen in 1927, Warners experimented with good music. Giovanni Marinelli sang "Vesti la Giubba" from "Pagliacci," and the New York Philharmonic played the "Pilgrims' Chorus" from Wagner's "Tannhaueser."

In 1930 MGM signed Metropolitan Thrush Grace Moore to play the Swedish Nightingale, Jenny Lind, one of the great singers of the last century. Grace sang "Casta Diva" from "Norma," as well as selections from "The Daughter of the Regiment." But when the film was completed it was publicized with no accent on the music. The picture failed.

Try, Try Again

After Columbia hit pay dirt with "One Night of Love" the rush started for musical compositions of quality. Lilting-voiced Lily Pons made "I Dream Too Much," in which she sang "Caro Nome" from "Rigoletto," and "The Bell Song," from the score of "Lakme." Nino Martini sang arias from "Pagliacci," "Manon," and "Tosca" in "Here's to Romance."

Lawrence Tibbett, who had sung only semi-popular music in "The Rogue Song," was permitted to do the operatic type of selection in which he excels in "Metropolitan" and other films.

Deanna Durbin has sung arias from many famed operas. Jeannette MacDonald, with a light opera voice suited to the melodies of Victor Herbert and Friml, interpolated several grand opera selections in her pictures with Nelson Eddy. Universal brought Stokowski to the screen with a full symphony orchestra in "A Hundred Men and a Girl," during which he conducted Tschaikowsky's Fifth symphony and a Liszt "Hungarian Rhapsody."

Metro will soon release "Music for Millions," in which Iturbi conducts the fourth movement of Dvorak's "New World" symphony, and other music in this film includes works by Debussy and Handel.

Yes, the movies have made good music a pal of the average citizen.

Story of 'Way Back When

Dining with Mrs. Tommy Meighan, I learned that sister Blanche Ring was the first to hire Will Rogers. She saw him do his rope act in Texas and engaged him for "Wall Street Girl." He said he wouldn't talk. Opening night on Broadway, he was such a hit she asked if he wouldn't say something. He did; he said, "Thanks!" . . . Universal has a wonderful story it wants Merle Oberon to do. It's a Bruce Manning script called "As It Was Before." I hear Metro offered $200,000 for it.

U. S. TREATMENT OF GERMAN PRISONERS

Parents of boys who are prisoners of Germany get increasingly burned up at reports showing how badly they are fed by the enemy, while German prisoners in the U. S. are eating better than American civilians.

German prisoners of war, many of them arrogant, insolent, and considered beyond political rehabilitation, get rationed foods denied civilians, and in some cases receive scarce foods requiring four times the food stamps now allowed American civilians.

The provost marshal, of course, is living up to the strict letter of the Geneva convention regarding prisoners, which provides that they be fed the same rations as U. S. soldiers.

Thus at one Florida camp, a one-week menu recently showed that the Nazi prisoners' ration for a single week would have required 45 meat points and 63 processed food points per man. Here is a sample of some of the meals German prisoners of war received at MacDill field, Florida.

Dinner: Turkey a la king, parsley potatoes, cauliflower, celery and pickles, bread, butter, chocolate cake, coffee.

At breakfast the next day they received grapefruit, dry cereal, fresh milk, boiled eggs, toast, butter, jam and coffee.

For luncheon they had veal steak, lyonnaise potatoes, stewed corn, fruit salad, bread, butter, peaches and coffee.

For supper the PW's had veal loaf, gravy, escalloped potatoes, green peas, cabbage and pineapple salad, bread, butter, cinnamon rolls and coffee.

The prisoners are served butter three times a day, seven days a week. During other days of the same week they had fried pork chops, bacon and eggs, beef stew, spareribs, roast veal, veal a la king, roast beef with gravy, baked ham and baked beans with salt pork. They were also given Boston cream pie for dinner, butterscotch pudding, pineapple fritters, marble cake, fruit cobbler, mince pie, peach shortcake, and other fancy dishes.

Meanwhile, American boys held by the Germans complain that were it not for Red Cross packages provided them by relatives they would be hungry constantly.

ARMY DISCHARGES

With all the pressure the army has been bringing for a work-or-fight law, no one in congress has taken time for a real investigation of the army's own wasteful disposition of manpower. Among other things, there has been no probe of army policy regarding medical discharges.

Actually, army medicos all over the country are discharging men for minor ailments which, although rendering them unfit for front-line action, don't effect their ability to do clerical, construction, or other types of work.

Last summer General Marshall also ordered discharges for men found to be developing nervous disorders as a result of their army service. But last October, so many men were successfully faking these difficulties that a six-week freeze was called, and a much stiffer discharge examination required.

But "goldbricks" and "gripes" are still the men who most frequently win their discharge papers. If a man dislikes the army, is uncooperative and is determined to get a medical discharge, the attitude of his officers is usually "good riddance." But a good man on other than combat duty, who has a legitimate illness which merits discharge, finds it extremely difficult to get his release because "he's a good man and we need men like him."

CAPITAL CHAFF

¶ The office of War Information so far has banned Lester Cowan's new movie hit "Tomorrow the World" from distribution in European liberated countries. The story shows a Nazi youngster transferred to the U. S. A. and being beaten up when he still sticks to Hitler's idea. OWI officials say they may release the ban for France and Belgium, but will not let the film get to Germany.

¶ Behind the United Automobile Workers' nationwide referendum to continue the "no-strike" pledge, was the feeling on the part of some workers that this pledge originally was forced on them by the union bosses. Union leaders therefore wanted to give them all a chance to vote. . . . The Walter Reuther faction of the auto workers previously favored a "no-strike" pledge until the war with Germany was over, but Reuther is now supporting the all-out "no-strike" pledge for the all-out effort against the Japs.

Timber Sales

In selling timber, a farmer must compare bids from buyers on the basis of the log-scale used. It pays to take 10 per cent less on sales by International or Scribner rule than by Doyle rule, since the Doyle rule underestimates the timber particularly in small logs.

Because of a San Francisco tragedy a year ago, groups from the bay city are in the forefront for passage of three assembly bills to provide treatment and schooling for child victims of spastic paralysis.

Shallow Cultivation

Corn cultivation should always be just as shallow as possible to avoid root injury. Since roots cannot develop in the dry loose layer, which constitutes the soil mulch, shallow cultivation gives the growing crop a chance to use more of the plowed soil as a feeding zone. Where the seedbed has been well prepared there is little or no value of cultivating corn more than is necessary in order to kill weeds, except possibly in case of heavy soils which check badly. Cultivation may be necessary on these soils to fill large cracks and thus stop the direct loss of moisture from the deeper soil layers.

Purpose of Appendix

Originally the appendix was as large as the intestine and its function was to help in fruit-eating primordial man's digestion. However, when man took to a mixed diet, the appendix shriveled and its function became less important. Now almost as small as a worm, its chief job is to supply bacteria that aid the digestive processes.

Hedda Hopper: Looking at HOLLYWOOD

RED-BLOODED girls with plenty of vim, vigor, intrigue, and mischief in their makeup are about to supplant the long cycle of admirable women who have held the foreground in motion pictures for the last two years.

And to Ernst Lubitsch, who has created many vogues in the 30 years he has been in our business, goes credit for the initial venture in 1945.

Shortly you will see Tallulah Bankhead in the red-blooded role of Catherine in Ernst Lubitsch's "A Royal Scandal." Catherine was a character both in history books and the Lubitsch film. She always got her man. Her technique was direct as the archer's arrow. Her methods fell short of murder — at least so far as her screen credit in this one goes—although the boys who wrote the textbooks gave her wider latitude.

Tallulah Bankhead

Gene Tierney

"Catherine might be said to represent the wish dreams of all women, especially the very repressed and quiet ones," said Lubitsch with that merry, naughty twinkle which is as much a part of his trademark as his big black cigar or his trick of making box office hits.

That Bankhead Touch

"Of course, Hedda, Bankhead makes Catherine a little more attractive than any other actress could possibly make her. Because the Bankhead influence is a highly contagious thing, either on the stage or in films, every woman comes out of the theater colored by the Bankhead influence."

Since this is a day of action for women, with more females active outside the home than at any time in American history, I can see where the Catherine type is singularly timely, and I'll agree with that. We've had a spate of saints and scientists, from Jennifer Jones in "The Song of Bernadette" to Greer Garson in "Madame Curie." We've had cozy Mrs. Miniver and noble, strong-hearted wives like Claudette Colbert in "Since You Went Away." We've had Maria Veronica in "The Keys of the Kingdom" and Irene Dunne's two characterizations of admirable women in "The White Cliffs of Dover" and "A Guy Named Joe." And as the motion picture industry seldom stands still sufficiently long to allow moss to grow on the pavement before the box office window, I can see where a radical change will be good all the way around.

Since Twentieth Century - Fox is snapping up all the best sellers—they now own a list of 20 or more—and since the trend of current literature is toward meatier heroes and heroines, Darryl Zanuck will be the first to inaugurate the new vogue on the screen.

Little, but O, My!

Gene Tierney will draw one of the outstanding examples of this new type in the role of Ellen in "Leave Her to Heaven." Ellen is a girl with a will of reinforced concrete. She has no scruples whatsoever, even when it comes to shoving a little lad out of a boat when he interferes with her share of her husband's time and attention. Make no mistake, there are such women.

If "Forever Amber" can be scripted in a way to skirt possible Hays office objections this will be a role to end all roles of the type. Practically any star you want to name in Hollywood would give her eye teeth to get a crack at it. Hung in the bawdy setting of the court of Charles II—an utterly amoral era—Amber flaunts her beauty, conspires for power, matches her wits with some of England's best brains. Saving grace for the film's chance is the fact that the book at finish points a clear moral—you don't get to enjoy what you want when you go about getting it in the wrong way.

It looks as if Greer Garson, too, will get her chance at a bad girl role. It's the star part in "Drivin' Woman" — a character that, morally irreproachable, gives the effect of a ruthless beauty without shred of scruple.

Come to think of it, most great acting roles center around red-blooded women. And bad girls certainly have something.

Alluring Lobbyist

I don't know any other Hollywood lobbyist in Washington who's had the Vice President play his or her accompaniment. Lauren Becall did. As she walked to the piano, one higher up was heard to whisper to another, "Why, that gal's hips wink at you!" . . . The latest independent quartet, going right ahead making plans, is Paulette Goddard, Burgess Meredith, Dudley Nichols, and Jean Renoir. Paulette has one outside picture a year from Paramount. This will no doubt be done at RKO.

Four Billions In E Bonds Goal In 7th War Loan

WASHINGTON, D. C.—"In the Seventh War Loan your government is asking for the largest sum in investments by individuals in the history of America. Of the $7,000,000,000 individual goal, $4,000,000,000 is to be in E Bonds," Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr. recently said in announcing the Advance Payroll Savings drive. The Secretary further stated:

"To meet this unprecedented but vitally necessary E Bond quota, the American worker, through the payroll savings plan, is being called upon for increased allotments and extra cash War Bond purchases to a greater extent than in any previous drive.

Sec. Morgenthau

"War is the grimmest and greatest of human endurance tests. The side that wins, in the final analysis, is the side that is in there working and fighting at the end—the side with the stamina and the spirit to endure the long and terrible ordeal.

"The present war imposes its test no less upon civilians than upon the men in the armed services. Victory goes inevitably to the side whose men and women, in and out of uniform, stick longest and most unwaveringly to the performance of their jobs.

"There has been a fundamental change in the nature of the war. There is no limited objective now. The objective is total victory. The nearer we drive toward the enemy's heart, the costlier the war becomes. As we begin to go all out against the Japanese, so will our costs increase due to greater distances.

"I know that Americans need no appeal to meet the demands of the Seventh War Loan. The way for each of us here at home to meet these demands is through increasing War Bond purchases, unceasing devotion to his duty and his job and through a vivid knowledge that to win we must sacrifice.

"Our response to the Seventh War Loan will be the vindication to these men of their faith in us."

PUT UP and STORE AWAY
HOME CANNED
Fruits and Vegetables

Take a tip from Buddy Squirrel. He has already started scurrying about, preparing to stock-up his winter larder. And that is a right chipper and smart thing for all of us to do. Soon your Victory Gardens will be producing a surplus of fresh vegetables and berries. Soon fruits will be coming on the market...available in lug-box bargains. Then you can put up and store away plenty of food for a rainy day.

TAKE THESE FIRST THREE STEPS IN HOME CANNING NOW!

1. Set up a canning budget to meet your family's needs for the year ahead.
2. Make an inventory of your jars and closures. Check for chips and cracks.
3. Have your pressure cooker tested immediately. Avoid delay if repairs are needed. Testing pressure cookers before each canning season is strongly advised by the University of California Agricultural Extension Service.
